

BURGLAR CAUGHT IN TURK'S STORE BY CLEVER WORK

Manager Richold Shows Good Judgment and Officer Brodie Displays Fine Courage in Wrestling Loaded Revolver from Yeggman's Hand—Gives Name of Raymond and Declares He Had Accomplices.

Quite the most daring break with intent to burglarize which has ever been attempted in Burlington was made at Turk's store Sunday evening by a man who gave his name as Frank Raymond. Good judgment used by S. S. Richold, manager of the store, and effective and quick action by Officer Dennis Brodie, who worked in the face of the burglar's revolver, resulted in the yeggman's capture while he was in the store, to which he gained admittance through a skylight. The capture of Raymond may be the solution of two other similar affairs, an attempt to enter Miles & Perry's store sometime during Friday night, and Saturday morning and the burglarizing of John W. O'Neill's saloon on Battery street Saturday night, though Raymond claims not to have arrived in Burlington until 4:20 Sunday morning.

The break at the R. Turk & Brothers store was made shortly after seven o'clock. Mr. Richold, as is his custom on Sunday evenings, went to the store to see that all was well and to get some correspondence. When he entered the store and started for his private office, which is located on the balcony at the rear, he heard a scraping noise. At first he was not alarmed and proceeded towards the rear of the store. When he arrived close to the foot of the stairs leading to the balcony and at a point just below the private office he ascertained that the noise was coming from the direction of the skylight over the office. He looked up through a window, which looks down on to the inside of the store from the office, and saw the man at work, removing the glass from the skylight. The other had been left at the front of the store. He further said that he had never before been in Burlington and would not talk except to answer the questions put to him. He persisted in the story that he did not know the names of the men who were with him. A careful search of the roofs of the buildings and all surrounding property revealed no other.

WORK OF A PROFESSIONAL. The work of removing the glass from the skylight was done in a very clever and professional manner. The putty was carefully removed, as if by a glazier, and the panes of glass, after being removed, were carefully laid to one side. Access to the roof was made easy by a fire escape to the building. On investigation the police found on a screen beside the window a small tin of putty, one of which had been smoked, and near the hatchway of the store was found a kit of tools, consisting of a cold chisel, hammer and file. The cigar appeared to be of the same brand and of the same proportions as three others which were found in the man's pocket when he was searched at the office. The tools, it might be said, were for work on the large safe of the company at the rear of the store. The revolver, which the man would not doubt have used if opportunity had been allowed, was an old-fashioned thirty-two calibre with six chambers, all of which were loaded. He had a five dollar bill in his wallet and three one dollar bills in a trousers pocket, besides some change. About three dollars was left in the drawer by the cashier at Turk's store. He gave his age as 27 years. He was locked up at the county jail.

FUNERAL OF PROFESSOR NATHAN F. MERRILL

University Faculty and Students Pay Last Tribute to Dead Teacher.

The funeral of Professor Nathan F. Merrill was held Thursday morning at eleven o'clock at the College Street Church in the presence of a large gathering. The body was escorted to the church from the rooms of the late professor in the old mill at the university, a procession that included the honorary pallbearers, the body bearers, and about 25 members of the faculty of professional rank. The services were conducted by the pastor of the church, the Rev. I. C. Smart, and President Benton of the University of Vermont. The honorary pallbearers were President Benton, the Hon. Allen G. Dix, George L. Bean, Thomas L. Perry, Lancel French, Harrison W. Moore and Walter H. Scott. A quartet consisting of Messrs. Douglas Roberts, F. S. Sweet, G. T. Short and Norman Williams sang "Lead, Kindly Light" and Martin Luther's "A Mighty Fortress is Our God." The professor's funeral march was played on the organ. There was a profusion of floral tributes, including pieces from the university, the trustees of the faculty, the classes, the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, the Algonquin club and many others. The body was escorted to the room under the procession, and accompanied by President Benton, Professors James, Tupper and Slocum, was taken to Boston to be interred by relatives of Professor Merrill. The body was cremated and the ashes interred in the family lot in Mount Auburn cemetery at Cambridge.

MISSING CO. FOUND.

Outfit from Papin Stable Recovered at Cambridgeport.

H. H. Papin Thursday recovered the outfit and wagon which had been missing from his stable since Saturday evening when it was rented by a man who said his name was Thomas Murphy and who gave his home address as Wyoming. A telephone message received yesterday morning by Mr. Papin from the Wells hotel at Cambridgeport stated that Mr. Wells had the team and asked that Mr. Papin send for it.

When Mr. Papin arrived at Cambridgeport Mr. Wells stated that he noticed the rig coming up the road early in the morning and, on looking it over, decided that it coincided with that of which a description was given in Thursday morning's Free Press. He went out and asked the owner, who proved to be James Burns of Cambridgeport, where he was going and found out that he was pointed for the Wells stable. Burns said Murphy had turned the rig over to him with the injunction to drive it to the Papin stable in Burlington and that at the time he was on the way. Mr. Papin left a man to drive the rig home and returned to this city in his automobile. Burns said that he would not tell where Murphy delivered the team to him unless forced to do so.

SALT LAKE WEDDING.

Recent U. V. M. Graduates Married in Utah's Capital City.

(From the Salt Lake City Herald-Republic of October 23.)

Rowland Hall was the scene of a beautiful wedding last evening when at 8:30 o'clock Miss Bernadine Kimball and Ralph Warner Bernardine were united in marriage by the Rev. Rev. Samuel R. Colladay of St. Mark's Cathedral.

The chapel was adorned with richly colored autumn leaves and vines, and was lighted by candles. Preceding the ceremony a musical program was given by the organ by Miss Alice Churchill, musical instructor at Rowland Hall, which included the following numbers: "Coronation March," from Le Prophete, Meyerbeer; "Torch March," from Aida, Verdi; "Pastoral," from Lohengrin, Wagner; "Vorspiel," from Tristan und Isolde, Wagner; "Spring Song," Mendelssohn; "Perfect Love," from Lohengrin, Wagner; "Vorspiel," from Lohengrin, Wagner; "Vorspiel," from Lohengrin, Wagner.

The ushers were Waldegar Van Cott, Russell C. Richards, Charles C. Bantz and William H. Paine. The bridesmaids, Miss Alice Kimball, Miss Denise Karlek, Miss Geneva Savake and Miss Helen Greenwood, who preceded the bride, were attired in dainty gowns of pale green and wore pink satin and chiffon and carried bouquets of pink bridesmaids roses.

The bride, who came in on the arm of her grandfather, Hiram Kimball, presented a beautiful picture in her bridal gown of white crepe de Chine with a train of white tulle and a veil of white tulle. She was followed by the bridesmaids, who carried bouquets of blue forget-me-nots nestled in the drapery. Her long tulle veil was fastened at the back with sprays of orange blossoms with a band of pearl beads across the forehead. A shower bouquet of brides roses and lilies of the valley completed her costume.

Mr. and Mrs. Simonds left last evening for a wedding trip to Los Angeles and San Francisco. They will make their home in Detroit, Mich., where Mr. Simonds is engaged in business, and is also studying law.

MANY-SIDEDNESS OF LONDON

Intimate Details of First among Europe's War Capitals.

Whole of Christian History Speaks to One in Hum of Monster City and Its Thousands of Hallowed Memories.

London, first among the war capitals, and foremost among the battle theatres on English ground—by reason of its having become the storm center for operations of the mighty Zeppelins, and sketched with all the intimate details of long friendship by Florence Craig Albrecht in a communication to the National Geographic society. Speaking of the many-sidedness, the great size and the ancient dignity of London, Mrs. Albrecht says:

"There are no many Londons in one London, where begin with them. The London of Roman and Saxon, of Norman and Plantagenet, the London of Chaucer and Shakespeare, of Lamb and Dickens and Thackeray; the London of clubs and hotels; the London of factories and sweatshops; the London that administers the affairs of empire, and the London that dances and plays cricket. There is the summer London of the tourist; there is the November London of smoke and fog, busy and unwholesome; there is to-day a darkened London, somewhat apprehensive, but grimly determined, a London different from any we have known.

"Putting aside all unproven traditions, its history begins with the coming of the Roman legions. Rome, seven centuries old, was in her pagan prime, but Parla, then Lutetia, was an island in the Seine; Vienna was a small Roman camp; Berlin did not come into existence for many a century thereafter; Madrid first appeared 1,000 years; Brussels was founded in the 10th century. Amsterdam about the 13th of our era. These count not at all in London's age.

"The city of London, the commercial heart of the metropolis on the site of the British hamlet and Roman town, measures about a mile square. In the daytime its inhabitants number more than 2,000,000; at night not a twelfth that number sleep there—and is too valuable for residence. During one day a million and a half of people pass through its gates. Beyond it and across the river spreads another London, of 5,000,000 people, over 10 square miles, and beyond that 'Greater London,' the district covered by the metropolitan and city police, with 700 square miles and more than 7,000,000 inhabitants.

"Her streets straightened and laid end to end, would reach from New York to San Francisco. Of her 60,000 buildings 50 are hotels and inns. One hundred thousand Americans pass through them in peaceful summers and 15,000 resided there before the war.

"The West End is the home of fashion and of power. Between these ends lies real London, with all its wealth of long and honorable history, of literary and legal repute, of commercial prestige, of architectural fame.

"The district across the water concerns the American visitor only in a few definite interests: all of London for him lies in a mile-wide band along the Thames, from the Tower to Westminster; but so rich in it that when he would summarize his impressions, he finds neither beginning nor end."

The whole of Christian history speaks to one in the hum of the monster city, the writer says, and in its thousands of possessions hallowed by memories. From the Tower, in turn palace, prison, arsenal, to the splendid Abbey, made sacred to civilization by the illustrious dead gathered within its walls. Mrs. Albrecht finds the echoes of the past nowhere more rich or more impressive than in the Imperial city of earth's greatest empire. Of this echo from the past, to be heard in London, Mrs. Albrecht says:

"It is the tramp of Roman legions investing a rugged British hamlet; it is the battle-cry of Saxon and Dane; it is the shout of the Norman conqueror, the echoes of the mallets of his builders; it is the gay songs of the courtiers riding to this or that place on the Thames; it is the chant of many psalms, the sob of martyrs; it is the thud of arms in muffled armor, as a battle rages down the river from the Judgment Hall of Westminster to the Traitor's Gate at the Tower. It is the laughter of masques and revels in Inns of court halls and gardens; it is the moan when a king dies by Whitehall; it is the frenzy born of plague and fire; it is the babble and yells of roisters, the drone of a mad crowd. It is all these and more—it is the throbbing of a city's heart; it is the voice of many people through two thousand years."

PREACHER WAS LAID UP.

Rev. C. M. Kington, Mavanna, Fla., writes: "For three months I suffered intense pain in the kidneys and back when at times I laid me out entirely. I used 1-2 bottles of Foley's Kidney Pills and all the pain disappeared. I feel as if 20 years had been added to my life."

STATE CHARITIES.

Preliminary Steps Taken towards Holding a Conference.

W. J. Van Patten returned Thursday from Rutland, where he attended on Wednesday a conference to consider the desirability of forming a State conference of charitable men and women from various parts of the State met at the Hotel Brunswick, where Dr. Frederick H. Knight, superintendent of the Little Wanderer House in Boston, addressed the gathering. Dr. Knight has been prominent for many years in the formation of conferences in the field of charity in New England and told of their value in carrying on the charitable enterprises of the State. Thirty-eight States of the Union, including all the States of the North and East, have Vermont, have such organizations and all of them have reported favorably as to the value and help derived from them. Following the help derived from them. Following the help derived from them. Following the help derived from them.

The L. & L. Mott Home Cares for Nine Children—Heats with Stoves.

The L. & L. Mott Home, a charity for the care of needy young children, was established 25 years ago. The big farm, built by the Mott family, which is now owned by the Mott family, has much needed heating plant, the cost of which will not exceed $50. There are six stoves now in use for heating, so that a central heater will be cheaper to operate and will give a more even temperature.

We are asked to present this statement of fact to our readers so that those who wish to aid this worthy charity may know of its needs. There is room now for two girls between the ages of two and seven years.

HOME WEDDING.

A. E. Weston of Rutland and Miss Myrtle Wells Married Saturday.

The wedding of Aden E. Weston of Rutland, a former resident of Burlington, and Miss Myrtle A. Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace B. Wells of 137 Mansfield avenue, took place Saturday morning at ten o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. George W. Davison, pastor of St. Paul's, performed the ceremony. The house was decorated with palms, ferns, and pink and white chrysanthemums. There were no attendants. The ceremony was witnessed by the two families and intimate friends. The bride wore a gown of white silk tulle and chiffon, trimmed with bride roses. Her traveling dress was of brown broadcloth. Following the ceremony a buffet lunch was served by Mrs. Walter Weston, Mrs. E. L. Tracy of Brattleboro, Mrs. Frank Wheeler of Plainfield, Mrs. Frank Weston of Winoski and Mrs. Oscar B. Wells of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Weston left at noon on a wedding trip to Boston. They will reside at Olmstead place, Rutland, where Mr. Weston is a member of the Rutland Manufacturing company. He formerly was associated with A. I. Lawrence of this city, architect. Mrs. Weston is a trained nurse. There were many beautiful wedding gifts.

Trifles Make Perfection.

When the history of the campaign in the Vosges comes to be written, a great many pages will have to be devoted to recounting the exploits of the chasseur des Vosges. The "Blue Devils," as the Germans have dubbed them, are the Highlanders of the French army, being recruited from the French slopes of the Alps and the Pyrenees. Tough as rawhide, hard as nails, keen as razors, they wear a distinctive dark-blue uniform, and the beret or cap of the French Alps, a flat-topped, jaunty head-dress which is brother to the tam-o'-shanter.

The frontier of Alsace, from a point opposite Strasburg to a point opposite Mulhausen, follows the summit of the Vosges, and is nearly a mile in height, has poured the French armies of invasion. In the van of those armies have marched the chasseur des Vosges, dragging their guns by hand up the almost sheer precipices, and dragging the gun-mules up after them dragging through forests so dense that they had to chop paths for the line regiments which followed them, carrying by storm the apparently impregnable positions held by the Germans, sleeping on the heights which they had captured often without blankets, with the mercury hovering near zero; taking their batteries into positions where it was believed that

INVESTIGATING ACCIDENT

Public Service Commission Looking into Death of C. C. Walker.

Was Employee of Municipal Lighting Plant and Lost His Life by Coming in Contact with a Live Wire.

There was a meeting of the public service commission at the Hotel Vermont Friday morning to investigate the death of Charles C. Walker, who lost his life by electrocution while at work for the municipal lighting plant on the lake front on October 1.

Commissioner W. R. Warner of Vergennes presided and the secretary of the commission, N. D. Clawson of Brattleboro, was also present to take the minutes.

State's Attorney Theodore E. Hopkiss appeared for the State, Dr. W. S. Vincent for the electric light commissioners, Mayor A. S. Brew for the city of Burlington and L. R. MacBroom, superintendent of the department, for the department. Dr. C. A. Pease of this city, who was called at the time of the accident, was summoned as a witness, and testified as to the efforts made with the pulmotor, etc., in an effort to resuscitate the victim.

Charles Baker, an employee of the light department who was working with Walker at the time he met death, was next called. He stated that Walker was upon his hands and knees and they were tracing up a wire when Baker turned back from getting his tools and observed the other man's feet beneath the switch board. When he got around to where he was on the other side he found him dead and pulled him away. He then summoned George Peras, who was working on the outside of the building, and the two made attempts at first aid resuscitation. F. C. McCaffrey was next summoned and his story substantiated that told by Baker. Superintendent MacBroom said that he had tested the wire which was untaped and that it carried about 1,340 volts of electricity. The last witness was Frank J. Dwyer, the undertaker who cared for the body, who testified that there was a spot burned on the man's left arm between the elbow and shoulder.

In the afternoon the commission went to the plant to investigate conditions there to see if anything can be done whereby the employees of the company might be further safeguarded against danger. Their report will be given later.

Jury Finds for Defendant in County Court Case.

A verdict for the defendant to recover his costs was returned Friday morning in the county court case of Henry A. Lamoine, vs. Michael Eddy, the jury being out only about 15 minutes. This was a contract action in which the plaintiff sought to recover a commission on the sale of the defendant's farm in Underhill Center to the plaintiff's father-in-law. The plaintiff claimed that it was through his efforts that the sale of the farm, which brought about $7,000, was made. Martin S. Villan represented the plaintiff and V. A. Bullard the defendant in the case.
